Thou hast Learned to Love Another.

Thou hast learned to love another,
Thou hast broken every vow,
We have parted from each other,
And my heart is lonely now.
I have taught my looks to shun thee
When coldly we have met;
For another's smile hath won thee,
And thy voice I must forget.
Oh, is it well to sever
This heart from thine forever?
Can I forget thee never?—
Farewell, farewell, forever!

We have met in scenes of pleasure,
We have met in halls of pride;
I have seen thy new found treasure,
I have gazed upon thy bride;
I have marked the timid lustre
Of thy downcast happy eye;
I have seen thee gaze upon her,
Forgetting I was by.
I'll grieve that e'er I met thee,
Fain, fain would I forget thee,
'T were folly to regret thee,—
Farewell, farewell, forever!

We have met and we have parted,
But I uttered scarce a word,
Like a guilty thing I started
When thy well known voice I heard.
Thy looks were stern and altered,
And thy looks were cold and high,
How my traitor courage faltered
When I dared to meet thine eye.
O, woman's love will grieve her,
And woman's pride will leave her;
Life has fled when love deceives her,—
Farewell, farewell, forever!

POPPING THE QUESTION.

We heard of many cases of "popping" under very singular circumstances, the eccentric, the abrupt, the business-like, the silly, and a hundred other styles. Of the eccentric, we would cite the case of a well known merchant, who, one day dining at a friend's house, sat next to a lady who possessed rare charms of conversation. The merchant did not possess this faculty in a very rare degree, but he could do that which was next best, he could appreciate, an appreciation which he endeavored to show by the following mode of action:

"Do you like toast, Miss B——?"

"Yes," responded the lady, quite surprised at the question.

"Buttered toast?"

"Yes."

"That is strange; so do I. Let us get married."

There cannot be much doubt that the lady was taken slightly aback, a fact that did not prevent the marriage from coming off in a month afterwards, nor the accession of the lady to one of the finest establishment in the city.

—As a specimen of the abrupt, we shall cite the case of a gentleman who had retired from business at the age of forty, and built himself a beautiful house, determined to enjoy life to the utmost. One day a friend was dining with him and said jokingly:

"You have everything here that the heart can desire but a wife."

"That's true. I must think of it," and then relapsed into silence for a few minutes, at the end of which time he rose, begged to be excused for a short time, and left the room. He seized his hat and went instantly to a neighbor's and was shown into the parlor, with the information that neither the pastor nor the mistress were at home. He told the servant that he wanted neither, and requested that the housekeeper be sent to him. She came, and the gentleman thus addressed her:

"Sarah, I have known you for many years and I have just been told that I want a wife. You are the only woman I should be willing to entrust my happiness with, and if you agree, we will be instantly married. What is your answer?"

Sarah knew the man that addressed her, and knew that his offer was serious, and as well weighed as though considered for a year and she answered him in the same spirit.

"I agree."

"Would you be ready in an hour?"

"I will."

"I shall return for you at that time."

Which he did, the gentleman who had suggested the idea accompanying him to the clergyman's. Many years have passed since then and neither party has seen any cause to regret the abrupt proposal and acceptance.

—Of the business style, we can cite a case related to us, which we know for a true one. A young man who had succeeded to the ill-kept and badly cultivated, though really valuable farm of a deceased uncle, saw at a glance that two things were absolutely necessary to enable him to succeed; the first being a wife to take charge of the woman's department, and the second a few thousand dollars to stock it with. He could not help thinking to himself that, possibly, these two great aids to his happiness and prosperity might be found together, and yet without attempting to put his matrimonial and financial ideas into practice, he allowed them to haunt him continually.

With this upon his mind, our farmer started upon a horseback journey to a distant part of the country, and upon his return made an acquaintance upon the road, in the person of an old gentleman, who was jogging the same way. The companions dined together at a wayside inn, and fraternized pleasantly, during which the young man opened his heart to the elder, telling him all his plans and aspirations, when the old gentleman addressed the younger.

"I rather like you, my friend, and your honest way of telling your story, and if you will come and see me, I shall be glad. I have three daughters, all as good girls as ever lived. Now, perhaps, one of them may be the very one you are looking for; if so, I will do my best toward making the balance of the matter agreeable. Ride over and see me to-morrow, take dinner, and stay the afternoon, which will give you a fair chance to see them and judge."

The young man instantly agreed to the proposal, making only a condition that the young ladies should not be informed of the nature of the errand. This was agreed to, and they separated.

The next day, at the time appointed, the young man dismounted at the door of the house of his new made friend, and was heartily welcomed. The hour before dinner was consumed in looking over the farm, the young man in admiring its keeping, and the old one in approving of the sensible and practical remarks of the younger, when the meal was announced, and the three young ladies and their mother introduced. They were all, as the old gentleman said, the girls, but the younger, rosy-cheeked, blue-eyed, and laughing-faced, charmed the young farmer especially. The dinner over, they once more walked out for a chat.

"Well, how do you like my daughters?" was the old gentleman's first question.

"They are all nice girls, very nice," said the young man thoughtfully.

"And which of them do you like best?" was the next question.

"The youngest, Kate, she is charming, and if I am to be your son in law, you must give me Kate!"

"This will never do to take the youngest and by all odds the prettiest," said the old gentleman, seriously.

"I must have her or none," was the response, spoken decidedly.

"How much money did you say you wanted?"

"Five thousand dollars will put my farm in excellent order, and make it worth twenty thousand to-morrow, I must have five thousand dollars."

"I'll give you the sum with either of the other girls," said the old man, positively; "but I will give but three thousand with Kate."

"Then I may as well go to my home. Five thousand I must have, I have set my mind upon it."

"And I have just as strongly determined to do only what I have said," was the old gentleman's reply; "so I suppose the matter is at an end. However, we will be good friends, and you must sometimes run over and see me."

This ended the conference and they parted. The young man mounted his horse, and rode down toward the road, but just as he was about opening the gate, stooping from his saddle, the laughing faced Kate sprang through the shrubbery to save him the trouble.

"Can't you accept my father's term?"

"Yes, by George, I will, if you say so," was the instantaneous response.

"Then come over to morrow morning before ten o'clock and tell him so," and the girl vanished like a fairy among the leaves. The young man rode slowly home but he was on hand next morning, according to bidding, and married the fair Kate in two months after.

—As a specimen of the absurd, we can not do better than cite a case that occurred within the jurisdiction of a county village in Massachusetts. There was a certain Zachariah Peebles, a stout, industrious, sober and bashful farm hand, a resident of that locality. Zack was celebrated not for what he did say, but for what he did not, his silence being a matter of marvel thro' all that chattering neighborhood.—Zach, with all his taciturnity, was not proof against the shafts of love, and one day was smitten with the wholesome charms of the only child of the widow Brown, a bright eyed girl, possessing the same trait of silence as Zack, though not in so eminent a degree.

The first time Zack showed his admiration for Sally was by seizing up a large basket of cowfeed she was about to carry into the stables, and hurrying thither in a frightened way, much as though he was taking it from a burning house. After that Zach seemed to be perpetually on the watch for opportunities to save the fair Sally from heavier work. These delicate attentions could not fail to attract the attention of the widow Brown, who, really suspecting the young man, invited him into the house to spend the evening, and from that time Zach was in a fixity. He would sit in the chimney corner of the old fashioned house, scarcely ever speaking, dividing his attentions equally between the fire and feasting his eyes on Sally. For two years this quiet adoration went on, and the neighbors wondered why, as there was nothing to prevent it, they did not marry. It never had been known whether the idea arose out of Zach's own brain, or whether it was a hint from a friend, but at last he did find courage to pop the question. It was done in this way. The time was New Year's eve, and the fair Sally had been preparing a stout jug of muddled cider that she might have something to cheer Zack's heart when he came in. He came, he drank, and took his accustomed seat in the chimney corner, where he sat quietly as usual for a few minutes, and then without any previous symptoms, he rose up to his full height, six feet and two inches, putting his head up the chimney so that but little of him was seen above the waist, and delivered the following oration:

"If somebody loved somebody as well as somebody loves somebody, somebody would marry somebody."

Zack remained with his head up the chimney after this speech, silent as death, for some minutes, until he came forth from his place of refuge at the earnest solicitation of widow Brown, with a face glowing like the setting sun. The thing was done, however, and Zack and Sally were married in a few weeks after, and we are convinced that if either of them could be induced to talk now, after a trial of a dozen years, they would say that they were entirely satisfied with that mode of popping the question.

—Apropos to this subject we find an item in one of our neighboring exchanges that we may call the hasty style of "popping the question":

Silas B—— is the name of a young man who, after serving Uncle Sam as a "bold sojer boy" for several years, has recently returned to this "neck o' timber," and become one of the proprietors of a line of hacks plying between Hollidaysburg and Martinsburg. Miss Martha U—— is the name, or was until recently, of a fair and comely lass residing with her "parients" somewhere within the classic regions of the interior of this State. These two, if our information be not at fault, form the hero and heroine of a little domestic drama of recent occurrence, the details of which we shall endeavor to narrate for the edification of the curious in such matters.

Not many moons ago the aforesaid Silas was leisurely driving his "coach and two" through the trade and traffic deserted streets of a certain ancient village, when he was suddenly taken with a spiritual or bodily ailment of some kind, and with a view to obtaining alleviating aid he for the time being "pulled up rein" at a friendly house by the wayside. Here he met with a goodly number of genial spirits, and soon was a participant in the pleasant chat being indulged in by the assembled company. Various subjects were discussed, and among them matrimony was duly ventilated. In the midst of the discussion upon this subject the question was propounded to Silas:—"Why don't you get married?" which was answered by the remark that he could find no one to have him. One of the party suggested that a lady then present, the heroine of this sketch, might not object to become "bone of his bone and flesh of his flesh," if the question was "popped" in due form and with serious intentions. Nothing loth to try her mettle, Silas immediately turned to the young lady and asked her whether she would be willing to accept him "for better or worse," until death would them part. Without unnecessary delay, but with a certain degree of maidenly bashfulness, the answer came that she was willing. Silas suggested that his question had been seriously propounded, and with due consideration of the consequences, and she replied that her answer was given in the same spirit. A clergymen was summoned without a second thought upon the matter, and the affair began to assume a more definite shape. At this stage of the proceedure the young lady began to realize the position, and made an effort to gain a short respite, suggesting among other things that she did not like to get married on that day of the week, (Friday,) as she had been taught that it was unlucky to undertake any enterprise, much less one so important, on that day. Her friends succeeded however, in overcoming her scruples, and in a ceremony brief but to the point, Martha in a short time doffed the name of U——, and assumed that of B——, amid the congratulations of the assembled witnesses.

The next step in order was the "breaking of the news" to the "old folks at home," and this duty devolving upon Martha, she straightway repaired to the parental mansion and gently informed her mother that she had "went and gone and done it." To say that her maternal progenitor was in "high dudgeon" when she learned of the fate that had befallen her daughter, would be but a feeble expression—she was downright angry, and the newly made bride came in for a fair share of parental chastisement of the wordy specie. But the thing was did, and no amount of talking would undo it, and the old lady, after a good night's rest, thought better of the matter, and being apparently prepossessed with the appearance of her son in law, who in the meantime, in company with a friend to guide his footsteps in the right direction, had found his way to the parental household, she "simmered down" with the best grace possible, and in due time regaled them with a bountiful wedding feast, wished them a life of unalloyed happiness, and sent them adrift on the sea of matrimony to "paddle their own canoe."

—Among the oddities of the mystery, the one over which we have personally wondered much, occurred in Philadelphia:

A lady and gentleman who had been acquainted but one week, and who move in the very first circles, were walking upon the street, the lady showing the lions of the city to the gentleman, who was a stranger in Philadelphia. In the course of their ramble they were stopped by a wedding party, who were alighting from their carriages at a church door. The lady proposed to go in and see the affair through. The gentleman consented, and together they stood till the ceremony was over. At this instant, the gentleman, taking the lady's hand in his, led her unresistingly to the altar, without a single word spoken, and presented her to the astonished minister, with the request that they should be made one. In ten minutes the knot was tied, and we have no reason to believe that either have in the ten years they have been joined, seen cause to regret the suddenness of the idea.

A MISTAKEN IDEA.—One of our cotemporaries most truthfully remarks that a popular idea among our people is that all of their sons should adopt clerkships, as a means of obtaining their livelihood, and every effort is made to give them an education to that end. So far as the education of their children in the science of keeping proper accounts is concerned the idea is a good one, as every young man should have a sufficient knowledge to properly manage his own books, should he ever embark in business, but to make book keepers and clerks of all our boys is a grand mistake. Better place them in a workshop, mill or foundry, where they can learn independent trades, which at all times will secure for them employment, and the pecuniary compensation for which will be at least as much, if not more, than the business of accounts. We earnestly advise all parents to learn their sons trades, no matter what, so that it is an industrious pursuit, and let us in the future be spared the pain of seeing so many stout, able-bodied young men out of employment, and seeking situations where the pen can only be used. There is dignity in labor, and an honest trade is the best legacy a parent can bestow upon his child, for it will secure his bread where all else may fail. The Harrisburg Telegraph bases the above remarks upon the fact than nearly one hundred applications from young men were received by a firm in Harrisburg, who recently advertised in the Telegraph but twice for an assistant book keeper. This fact alone, taken in connection with the well known scarcity of labor in the mechanical branches of industry, speaks volumes in condemnation of the popular error of making book keepers out of all our boys.

☞ An itinerant preacher, who rambled in his sermons, when requested to stick to his text, replied "that scattering shot would hit the most birds."

☞ Why are ladies who ride in railway carriages reserved "for ladies only" never in time? Give it up? Then I'll tell you. It is because ladies' trains are always behind.

Schools.

Now that the election is over, the winter setting in and the schools opening, it would not be out of place to say a word about schools.

Firstly, then, a school is a good institution, and a good institution is a good thing. But there cannot be a good school without a good school house, any more than there can be a good house-keeper without a house. A real tidy house-keeper can not keep house in the kitchen, and a good teacher can not keep good school in a barn. A school house ought to be built on the centre of a lot that ought to contain from one acre to ten acres. There should be a paved walk from the street to the door, so that the feet may be well rid of mud and filth before the pupils arrive at the door. There should be a portico before the door, and that portico should have scrapes, rugs and other necessary arrangements, where fifty pupils could clean one hundred feet before entering the school room. There should be sea-grass carpet in the hall, and on the stairway and aisles, so that fifty pupils would not make a tremendous clatter with one hundred feet. There should be a bell on every school house to call the pupils together at a certain time, and to ring upon the dismissal of the school. There should be a basement to every school room, where stoves or furnaces could be placed, and where all the dirt incident to building fires could be disposed of without detriment to the school room proper. There should be small closets along the sides of each school room, where shawls, bonnets, hats, caps, &c., could be put away safely, and there should be soap, water, basin and towel in each one. Each pupil should have a separate desk, well finished and varnished, with lock and key, in which the books would be safe without having to be carried home every other day. The keys should be left with the teacher so that they would not become mislaid. Every school have a book case, and a library, so that the teacher could form classes independent of parental aid and interference. The windows should raise and lower, so that proper ventilation could be had at all times. There should be strong shutters on every window and a good lock upon every door. The janitor's door being in the basement, he should have a key of his own so that he would seldom need to enter and disarrange the school room. There should be maps, globes, charts, pictures and attractive furniture in every school room, large and small, in town and country, in order that the place might be attractive.

Now, secondly, what would all these arrangements cost? The reader will be surprised if we say that they will cost but a trifle more than the bare school house. After the lot is purchased and the house completed, it would not cost each parent much to have all these little et ceetras, which make an attractive home for children. And what parent would not give five dollars to make and furnish a cosy little school house in which their children would be as comfortable as at home? Surely if there be a place in creation worth improving and adorning, it is a school house and lot, where from fifty to one hundred children congregate daily in the pursuit of useful knowledge We have said nothing of planting trees and shrubbery, because, where other indispensable improvements are made, the teacher and the children would plant and adorn the lot.

Compare such a school house with an old, crazy, rickety house, with creaking door, broken floor and windows, smoking chimneys, bad stove, dusty loft, scringing seats, muddy lot, carpetless rooms, dismal walls, &c., and the contrast becomes at once interesting, and makes an unanswerable argument in favor of a good house.

ALL ABOUT DIMPLES.—Whoever is responsible for the following, should be immediately placed under restraint by his friends—if he has any—for he is a dangerous animal to be at large:

"Dimples are the perpetual smiles of Nature—the very cunningest device and lurking place of love. When earth is dimpled by dells and valleys, it always seems to laugh; when the ocean is dimpled by the breeze, it sparkles with joy beneath the sunshine of heaven. We cannot look for frowns on a dimpled face; frowns and dimples will not associate together. How soft, how roguish, how beautiful are the dimples in the elbows and shoulders, of the pretty hands and feet of the rosy babe. Mothers dote upon those darling dimples, and delight to kiss them. But perfectly enchanting dimples, at least to the eyes of an enthusiastic young man, are those which come peeping out of the cheeks and around the mouth of "sweet seventeen" when sweet seventeen essays some arch, provoking sally, peeping out and flying away the moment after, coming and going with the most bewitching coquetry."

Execution of Champ Ferguson.

The Scene on the Scaffold—What he had to Say.

NASHVILLE, Oct. 20.—Champ Ferguson was executed at noon to-day at the penitentiary grounds, just outside the city. He died game on the gallows, evincing no emotion until the rope was placed around his neck, when his face turned very red and broke out into profuse perspiration, attended with a strong quivering of the lips. He stood composedly on the drop some twenty minutes, while the charges, specifications and sentence were read. He nodded recognition to several persons in the crowd, and shifted his position in an impatient manner while the sentence was being read. To some specifications he inclined his head in assent. To others he shook his head. That about Elam Huddleston caused him to say, "I can tell it better than that." When the speaker read, "To all of which the prisoner pleads not guilty," he said, "I don't now."

After a prayer by his spiritual adviser, he was asked if he had anything to say before proceeding with the execution. He replied, "Nothing to say particularly at all, no I don't think I have."

The noose was here placed around his neck, and then, for the first time, he gave signs of emotion, and his face blushed to a deep scarlet. The perspiration broke forth profusely from his face, and his lips closed with a convulsive quiver. The realization of his awful situation seemed to have flashed over his mind in all its fullness, overpowering his fortitude.

He expressed himself as much opposed to having anything placed over his eyes, when a handkerchief was called for. Then he volunteered the statement:

"I don't know some things in those specifications. But I don't deny anything I ever done."

For a moment or two he seemed to be repressing an impulse to make fuller remarks. After a brief pause, he added:

"I want to be sent to my family. I don't want to be buried on this soil."

After another pause he continued, in an excited tone:

"Don't give me to the doctors. I don't want to be cut up."

Here Col. Shafter answered: "You shan't, Mr. Ferguson."

A short silence followed, when the prisoner again spoke. "I want to be put in that thing," pointing to his coffin, "and taken to White county, where I can have my family around me. If I had only had my way I wouldn't have been here. Whenever you are ready I am done. My last request is to be sent away with my wife."

His last words were, "O Lord, have mercy on me, I pray thee!"

At seventeen minutes to twelve o'clock the drop fell, and life was extinct in sixteen minutes.

☞ The reduction of the army has already progressed upon the tremendous scale on which it was raised and the war was waged. When the final blow was struck by Gen. Grant, he was at the head of a veteran army, of over one million men. The number is almost beyond our comprehension, and when we consider all the machinery necessary to keep such a force fed, clothed, armed and effective for war, the idea is too large to be appreciated except by piecemeal. The expenses of the war were steadily increased from year to year. The first year it cost $475,000,000; the second year, $679,000,000; the third year, $916,000,000; the fourth year, $1,215,000,000. The Quartermaster's Department of the army expended $1,400,000,000 during the four years of its continuance. We all remember how promptly Gen. Grant turned from the crowing victory in the field to the work of reducing the expenses of the Government. The soldiers were paid off and sent home by tens of thousands and hundreds of thousands. The force in the service has been reduced probably to about one hundred and fifty thousand men, and the navy in the same proportion. But the Government it seems, does not propose to stop here. The army is to be reduced to a peace footing, and upon that work the Lieutenant General has now entered. How large a force is to be retained is uncertain, but probably not more than fifty thousand men.

☞ A Western editor complains that his poverty was nearly exposed to the world. A pickpocket relieved him of his purse, but unexpectedly, and considerately refrained from saying anything about the contents.

☞ 'Ike,' said Mrs. Partington, 'how do they find out the distance between the earth and the sun?'

'Oh,' said the young hopeful, 'they calculate a quarter of the distance, and then multiply by four.'

☞ 'My dear Julia,' said one girl to another, 'can you make up your mind to marry that editor, Mr. Snuff?' 'Why, my dear,' Mary replied, 'I believe I could take him at a pinch.'

Jefferson Davis.

A strange diversity of opinion has suddenly sprung up among the people with regard to the traitor Jeff. Davis. A few months ago, before the rebellion closed, and shortly after the capture of the head of the Confederacy, the united tone of the people in the North and in some portions of the South was against Jeff. Davis, and the opinion was also general that the only justifiable punishment he should receive for his crime was that of hanging. The people were thought to express their opinion during the war by the favorable manner in which they received the song which strongly intimated that "we'll hang Jeff Davis on a sour apple tree;" the press, almost everywhere, after the capture of the arch traitor, expatiated largely upon the jocund manner in which his fugitive career terminated, and they urgently called for immediate punishment. But, for some reason or other, the government has procrastinated his trial, and kept him secured in a fortress, where he, perhaps, silently mused and opined over the evils of his past career, and anxiously awaited the clemency of our Government. He has heard of the trial and sentence of his underlings, a few of whom felt the full rigor of justice in a murderer's doom, and he has seen his numerous chiefs and advisers take the amnesty oath and allowed to roam in undisputed channels. He has observed this, and he must be very incredulous if he did not presume his fate did not rest on the hair breadth scope he might have at first imagined. But this is not all. Appeals have, from time to time, come to the President, requesting the pardon of him who figured so conspicuously in the late rebellion, and, long ere this, Davis must have been informed of the fact that the feeling is gaining prevalence among many in the North that it would be well to "swear him and let him go," as has been done with Lee, Stephens, and a host of other spirits of the Confederacy.

What has caused this change of sentiment is now a question generally asked. We can attribute it to but one fact, that his trial has been too long delayed. Have we given ourselves up to calm and sober reasoning, or has the evils of the crime of treason lost their hideousness? True, some have reasoned calmly, but could they entertain the same feeling with regard to his punishment, now, as they did when he was captured. Those who argued that hanging should be his doom then, can not argue the same view with the same vigor now. They have lost much of their hatred of the evils of which Davis is guilty, and they have to encounter the increasing opinion that now possesses many who at the beginning counselled and coincided with them. We have, from the commencement urged that justice should be done, and we consider that the opinion bred by procrastination which advises his restoration to liberty is no cloak to screen the demands of justice. An opinion to the same import is just as likely to be entertained with relation to the murderer who has been confined for several months, and appeals are just as apt to be circulated requesting his pardon; but surely justice would be a farce and our government a failure, should pardon be granted before an examination was made, and the enormity of the crime exposed. So we think upon the case of Jeff Davis, and the crime of treason. If treason is a crime, let it be shown where the heinousness exists, and let it be made odious in the sight of the people. Appeals upon the Government's clemency for the pardon of Jeff Davis should have no weight whatever. We desire the people to know what treason is, and we wait for the trial of Jefferson Davis to show its enormity. We see nothing to interfere with the early trial, and to delay longer only makes the matter worse.

A REGISTER of all volunteer officers who have served in the army since the rebellion commenced has been prepared at the War Department, and is being printed at the Government printing office. It is also thought that the Military Committees of the Senate and House, will urge, as soon as Congress meets, the publication of a register containing the name, rank, company, and regiment of every private soldier and non commissioned officer, who has served in the Union army since the rebellion, with other information, showing the service each performed.

LORD PALMERSTON, the Premier of England, died on the 18th ult., at his home at Brockett Hall, England. He was suddenly taken ill on the 15th, from the effects of a cold, but rallied and steadily improved until the evening of the 17th, when a relapse occurred. He would have completed his 81st year on the 20th, and had been in office fifty eight years. Lord Russell, it is thought, will be his successor.

THE cholera is making dreadful havoc in France. The number of deaths in Paris in four days was over 800.

A National Thanksgiving.

By the President of the United States of America:

A PROCLAMATION.

Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God during the year which is now coming to an end, to relieve our beloved country from the fearful scourge of civil war, and to permit us to secure the blessings of peace, unity, and harmony with a great enlargement of civil liberty: And whereas our Heavenly Father has also during the year graciously averted from us the calamities of foreign war, pestilence and famine, while our granaries are full of the fruits of an abundant season: And whereas righteousness exalteth a nation, while sin is a reproach to any people:

Now, therefore, be it known, that I, Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, do hereby recommend to the people thereof that they do set apart and observe the first Thursday of December next as a day of National Thanks—given to the Creatior of the Universe for these deliverances and blessings. And I do further recommend, that on that occasion the whole people make confession of our national sins against His infinite goodness, and with one heart and one mind implore the Divine guidance in the ways of national virtue and holiness.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand, and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the city of Washington, this twenty-eighth day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty five, and of the independence of the United States of America the ninetieth.

ANDREW JOHNSON.

By the President:
WM. H. SEWARD, Secretary of State.

☞ Some of the city papers fear that, if Lord Russell is made Premier of England as the successor to Lord Palmerston, we will have a war with that power, as he is disposed to "pitch in" on the slightest pretence. Russell has always been one of our enemies, but we think he will not be as hasty to execute his threats as he is to make them. A nice and delicate series of diplomatic correspondence has been kept up between our minister, Adams, and Lord Russell, with relation to some of Brother Jonathan's "grudges," that, if nothing else, will show to Johnny Bull we are not "disposed to be neutral," nor to forget him.

COME AT LAST.—That terrible plague, the cholera, which has made such havoc in the population of the old world, and caused considerable dread in this world, has arrived in this country at last. The steamship Atalanta from London, by way of Havre, arrived off Staten Island, N. Y., on the night of November 2d. There were fifteen deaths out of fifty cases on board this vessel. Every quarantine and inland precaution is being taken to prevent any spread of the disease.

[For the Globe.]

Repudiation.

It will be remembered that during the campaign previous to the last election in this State a great cry was raised in a certain quarter, because of the non taxation of the national securities. This was only a new phase of the demagoguism that has always characterized the leaders of the Democratic party,—an attempt to array the poor man against the rich by persuading him that the latter was trying to get his property into such a shape that it could not be reached by taxation, while the former was compelled to support by his labor the machinery of government. Thus it was sought to deceive unthinking men, but the intelligence of our laboring classes led them to see its falsity, and to reject alike the doctrine and the men by whom it was originated. It was perceived on the contrary that those who had invested in the national bonds, who loaned their money to the Government, had furnished the means of carrying on the war, of suppressing the rebellion, and of maintaining the Union, and it was further evident that those who had thus evinced their patriotism belonged to the Union party.

If we could believe that this political subterfuge belonged entirely to the past we could consent to let it rest, but we can see that it is to be revived as soon as the approach of another election affords the opportunity. And it may be anticipated that a few in triguers can without much difficulty introduce this as the rallying cry of the so-called Democracy. A party that has from the beginning mistrusted the public credit, opposing measures for the raising of men and means, preaching that the war was a failure, and that the country was ruined, and consequently refusing to avail themselves of the inducements offered to those who would render assistance to the nation. Such a party may easily be induced to endeavor to prevent their more patriotic fellow citizens from receiving the reward so justly due them.

It may be maintained that Democrats have invested in our national securities. If true, this is an evidence that a portion of that party knew very well that they published a falsehood when they said the United States was contracting a debt that could never be paid.

We could not safely presume that any Democrat holding these bonds would wish to see them subjected to taxation. To one of that character we would be compelled to ascribe a disinterestedness seldom witnessed, or view him as one who is willing to pay a good price for political popularity. There may be those who would attempt to ride into power on the pretense of desiring to pay taxes.

When the needs of the country became so urgent that it was found necessary to appeal to the people for aid, a definite proposal was made by the Government which all were at liberty to accept or reject. This was responded to by a vast portion of our population, men of small means, as well as those of large capital, proving their confidence in the public credit by making investments. In this manner a valid contract was entered into to which the Government was one of the parties, and to the faithful performance of which its honor is pledged. Yet a political organization, claiming an extensive influence, desired the repudiation of a part of this contract. Reviving an old Southern doctrine, they add another evidence, to the many produced during the war, tending to prove the similarity of modern Democracy and Secessionism.

COMMONPLACE.

SPRUCE CREEK, PA., Nov. 3d '65.

The National Debt.

Mr. McCulloch, Secretary of the Treasury, publishes an official statement of the public debt on the 31st of October, from which it appears that the total national indebtedness on that day, amounted to $2,740,854,758 81 (two thousand seven hundred and forty millions, eight hundred and fifty-four thousand, seven hundred and fifty eight dollars and eighty one cents.)—The total annual interest accruing on this debt is $138,938,078 59. The following table shows the total amount of the public debt at the dates stated, to wit:

Outstanding	March 4, 1861	$68,527,683 02
do	June 30, 1861	90,755,736 09
do	June 30, 1862	514,999,332 99
do	June 30, 1863	1,098,793,134 43
do	June 30, 1864	1,740,690,492 53
do	July 31, 1865	2,674,084,526 93
do	August 31, 1865	2,845,999,245 10
do	September 30, 1865	2,834,032,074 57
do	October 31, 1865	2,740,854,758 81

It will be seen by the above table that our debt reached its highest point in the latter end of July last; since then it has steadily moved downward, and must continue to move downward until the burden is entirely removed, which cannot be at that period in the far distant future which the enemies of the Union have been so long predicting. The national debt is a national legacy, and the faith of the Government is pledged to the redemption of every dollar borrowed through the necessities of the war.

ALLUDING to the silent amazement with which the "Democratic" organs receive Mr. Johnson's speech to the negro soldiers, the Evening Post says: "It is known that a sixty eight pounder, or other heavy cannon, fired over the waters of a shallow bay, will kill, by its concussion, the lobsters and other hard-shell fish. They fall into convulsions, and perish in great numbers. The President's thousand pounder, on Tuesday, seems to have similarly affected the people who call themselves Democrats. They are struck with universal lock jaw. They are amazed—'dumbfounded,' to use a vulgar saying. They make altogether a very ludicrous and pitiable spectacle."

THERE has as yet been no definite Executive action on the findings of the Wirz Military Commission, which recently closed its labors. Wirz is in confinement, awaiting sentence.

IT IS SAID that $1,020,000,000 have been paid to the army alone since the beginning of the rebellion.

Interesting Trial and Conviction.

A Family of Thieves; from the Grayhaired Grandfather to his Own Daughters and Sons.

[Special Correspondence of The Press.]

HOLLIDAYSBURG, Blair Co., Oct. 30.

One of the most important trials took place in our criminal court during the last week, that the people of this section have ever witnessed. The charge was larceny. The parties indicted were John J. Burkholder, Lydiah, his wife, Julia, Lavinia, and Mary Hawk, his daughters, and Henry, Thomas, Perry, and Norval Hawk, sons and sons-in-law. The trial lasted three days, and resulted in a conviction of all the defendants, except Perry Burkholder and his mother. The evidence was more conclusive against Mrs. B. than any other of the defendants, but she was sick, and was not therefore on trial. There was no evidence as to Perry. The charge was for stealing a large amount of goods shipped in the cars of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. The principal witness against the defendants was John Bishop Cozzens Ware, an accomplice, who, with his wife, Margaret Burkholder, were the most active participants in the crime. John J. Burkholder, the head of this delectable family, was a well to do farmer and horse speculator, living four miles east of Altoona, in this county. His daughter, Mary Hawk, and her husband, Norval Hawk, in the months of October, November and December, 1864, and January, 1865, resided in Altoona. Margaret Burkholder, not then married to John Bishop Cozzens Ware, was a frequent visitor at her sister's; and here was planned this gigantic system of robbery. Hawk, as an employee, had got possession of a freight-car key, which was broken, but by filing answered the purpose of this family of felons. During the last three months of 1864, large, nay, immense quantities of goods were missing from the cars, and no one was suspected. The goods were carried to Hawk's, there divided, and the share of Lavinia and Julia carried to their mother and two brothers, Henry and Thomas, down into the country, to their home—on horseback, in the carriage and in sleds. On Dec. 31st, Ware and Margaret were married. The cars of the railroad company furnished them with an outfit for housekeeping. The stock of Mr. Krause, from Pottstown, Montgomery county, was pilfered, and great quantities of towels, carpets, silk dresses and shawls taken by this woman from the cars, his goods having been shipped for Indiana, Pa. John J. Burkholder was opposed to this match. Things went on swimmingly, until, in March, of this year, traces of the missing goods were then observed. Search warrants were obtained, and the result was the discovery of about a thousand dollars' worth of goods at Hawk's and Ware's. This being but a mite of the amount missing, led to the suspicion that some was concealed at Burkholder's. The first day the parties went they found but little to confirm suspicion, but the next day, Ware having been arrested, he told them where it might be hid, and as the search continued great packages of goods were found hidden in the haymow, in the cellar, under the potatoes, in and about the out house and everywhere that goods could or would be hidden. Lamps and oil cans of the railroad company were found in the possession of Burkholder, and stolen goods were found in every part of the house—in the chests and trunks of the girls and even upon the persons of the boys. Horse blankets, stolen from the cars, were found to have been used by Burkholder on his horses when he and his wife were out in the country sleighing. There did not seem to be any confederacy between Ware and the old man, nor did it require that there should be any. The wife and daughter were the connecting links in the chain. It was impossible to convict all the defendants without the testimony of Ware, as nine tenths of the property it was not possible to identify. A nol pros, was entered as to Ware, and wife. To enter it for him alone would close his mouth in any case where she was a defendant, and he "peached." His testimony was fully corroborated by much other evidence, and the result was the conviction, as before mentioned. The greater number of the parties are still in prison awaiting sentence. John J. Burkholder went home to fix up his business preparatory to taking up his residence at Alleghany City. He owns a large farm, and was in no necessity of restoring to this mode of making a living. The prosecution was conducted by the district attorney, John H. Keatley, Esq., John Scott, Esq., of Huntingdon, and D. J. Neff, Esq., of Altoona; the defence by Hons. S. S. Blair and Samuel Calvin. No case since the celebrated trial of McKim for the murder of Norcross has so much attracted public attention. It was a sad spectacle to witness the arraignment of a whole family hitherto occupying a respectable position in society, and seemingly above ordinary want. The trial was doubly impressive, inasmuch as it is the practice in this judicial district, under the act of Assembly, to arraign all persons charged with the commission of a felony. It was a strange and painful family reunion—eight persons, from the grayheaded grandfather to the youngest son of fourteen years of age. The impression made upon our community will not soon be effaced. X.

NOTICE
To Merchants and Business Men.

THE undersigned having recently been appointed agent for the New York National Ink Company, hereby gives notice to merchants, business men, and to consumers of all classes that he is prepared to supply the market with an article of Ink which in addition to being the best in use, is emphatically the cheapest ever offered for sale in this country.

It neither corrodes the pen, nor moulds the inkstand, is of a rich bluish tint when first written, and is perfectly indelible, giving it advantages not possessed by any other Ink, whether of foreign or domestic manufacture. This Ink contains no sediment and will not therefore, thicken as most inks do, the last drop being as thin and clear as the first.

☞ All orders whether wholesale or retail, will be promptly filled, at lower rates than as good an article can be purchased in the cities or elsewhere. Persons who entertain doubts as to the superior quality and cheapness of this Ink are respectfully entreated to give it a trial John H. Clark, sub-agent will canvass the county for the purpose of introducing this Ink.

PROCLAMATION.—WHEREAS, by a precept to me directed, dated at Huntingdon, the 19th day of August, A. D. 1865, under the hands and seal of the Hon. George Taylor, President of the Court of Common Pleas, Oyer and Terminer, and general jail delivery of the 24th Judicial District of Pennsylvania, composed of Huntingdon, Blair and Cambria counties; and the Hons. Benjamin F. Patton and William B. Less his associates, Judges of the county of Huntingdon, Justices assigned, appointed to hear, try and determine all and every indictments made or taken for or concerning all crimes, which by the laws of the State are made capital, or felonies of death, and other offences, crimes and misdemeanors, which have been or shall hereafter be committed or perpetrated, for crimes aforesaid—I am commanded to make public proclamation throughout my whole bailiwick, that a Court of Oyer and Terminer, of Common Pleas and Quarter Sessions, will be held at the Court House in the borough of Huntingdon, on the second Monday (and 13th day) of November next, and those who will prosecute the said prisoners, be then and there to prosecute them as it shall be just, and that all Justices of the Peace, Coroner and Constables within said county, be then and there in their proper persons, at 10 o'clock, a. m. of said day, with their records, inquisitions, examinations and remembrances, to do those things which to their offices respectively appertain.

Dated at Huntingdon, the 24th day October in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five, and the 89th year of American Independence.

GEO. W. JOHNSTON, Sheriff.

PROCLAMATION.—WHEREAS, by a precept to me directed by the Judges of the Common Pleas of the county of Huntingdon, bearing test the 19th day of August, A. D. 1865, I am commanded to make public Proclamation throughout my whole bailiwick, that a Court of Common Pleas will be held at the Court House in the borough of Huntingdon, on the 3rd Monday (and 20th day) of November, A. D., 1865, for the trial of all issues in said Court which remain undetermined before the said Judges, when and where all jurors, witnesses, and suitors, in the trials of all issues are required.

Dated at Huntingdon, the 14th of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five, and the 89th year of American Independence.

GEO. W. JOHNSTON, Sheriff.

Sheriff's Office, Huntingdon, Oct. 24, '65.

Brief Items.

—Ushered in—the season for parties

—Going southward—Wild geese.

—The Journal & American office is offered for sale.

—Down, and well stamped—Traugh's "pickled manure."

—Deceives his looks, Traugh—he says he can't eat "krout."

—The corn crop was heavy in this county this year.

—Heavier—Some who get "corned" last week.

—Diaries for '66, received at Lewis' Book Store.

—The "wetter" last week was wet, but no wetter than the streets were muddy. Look out for cholera.

—The Indian Compound, for sale at Lewis' Book Store, is still on hand, and is going like hot-cakes.

—The 22d Penna. Cavalry has been discharged, and the boys from this place are at home, looking well.

—Now is the time to buy—Wall Paper—a large number of new styles for 66 just received at Lewis' Book Store.

—Any person or persons wishing a chance to purchase horses or cattle are invited to read the advertisement of James H. Patterson.

—For good black ink, that manufactured by Simon Cohn, Coffee Run, can't be beat. We continually use it, and keep it on hand for sale.

—The "hog cholera" is said to be prevailing to an alarming extent in counties around us. The "hog squealera" will soon prevail around us.

—Court week commences next Monday. There will be two weeks of Court, affording ample opportunity for friends to give us a call.

—An exchange wonders why ladies persist in wearing waterfalls in this season, and sneeringly remarks that they ought to freeze. Who's they?

—Turkeys, from all appearance, will be trump in this section on Christmas. Wherever we go our ears are saluted by the unwelcome gobble of the gobbler.

—A rascal entered Mr. John Oaks' house, of Jackson township, one night last week, and relieved the old gentleman of one hundred dollars. The scamp is not known.

—"Dead heads" on railroads are as numerous as grasshoppers, in this neck o' timber. Some gents, and misses, too, will contrive to fare alike in this race of life.

—Our town was visited by a disagreeable snow storm on Sunday last. Not that the snow was disagreeable, but rather the way it stormed and blew. This was the first snow of the season.

—The boys did hallow last Tuesday eve, if hallow is made to mean halloa. Such yelling as their lungs produced made night hideous, and their chief aim was to taunt and annoy peaceable citizens.

—Game of all kinds is represented to be plenty in this and neighboring counties this year. We have seen some tempting representatives of the fur and feathery tribes that were bagged by some of our hunters.

—The time has come to look into the future, so those who wish to know the signs of the times and the times of the signs, please call at Lewis' Book Store and provide themselves and family with an English or German Almanac for 1866.

—Our great desire is to see a town library established, believing that a good literary standard is an enviable thing. Will the Good Templar society, or some other society go to work and establish the same? Every town of importance in the State has one, and why shouldn't we.

—We understand the dedication of the new Methodist Church at Ennisville, on Sunday last was an entire success. Rev. Pershing of Pittsburg, preached the dedicatory sermon. Over seventeen hundred dollars were subscribed by the persons present. It is said to be a neat and well finished church, and beautifully located.

—One of our advertisers says he never thought of the benefit of advertising until he tried it. Now, everybody asks of him, as soon as he mentions his name, where is the article he is selling, as they must have one. We need scarcely refer to the Photograph Family Record, now sold by Mr. Harrison. No agent should canvass without first advertising, and Mr. H. shows how sensible he is.

☞ The Juniata Sentinel has passed into the hands of H. H. Wilson, Esq. The No. before us just looks as this paper always did, and though well edited, yet much improvement can be made in typographical appearance. We wish the Union editor abundant success.

☞ There will be divine service in St. John's Episcopal Church, this place, on next Sabbath, November 12th.

Market House.

Our town has long been in need of a market house, to which our farmers, butchers and gardeners could bring their productions and viands for the inspection and purchase of our citizens. As it is at present, we have to depend upon our merchants, or else every man has to provide for his own house by watching for the first farmer's wagon that makes its appearance. At the first instance we are obliged to pay the merchants' additional price for the luxuries, and in the second, trouble, a good run, and sometimes serious disappointment is our doom. A well kept market would obviate the evils of both these systems, each individual knowing where to go and what he can purchase. Our present worthy councilmen have had their eye upon this, and at their last meeting on Friday determined to build a market house, we believe to be located on Hill street, between Smith and Montgomery streets. While we do not like the position as well as the idea, yet we will not quabble if the council make immediate preparations to have the idea assume a real shape.

Thanksgiving.

"E e p e-e-p, o o-p o-o-p, obble, obble, obble," is now a universal barnyard song. Wherever you may chance to go, you will find these holiday martyrs 'feasted and feted' for the approaching holiday sacrifice. Thanksgivings are great occasions, and the pleasures of the day are considerably augmented when a finely-roasted, oyster stuffed, well dressed gobbler exhales its savory fragrance from the festive board. Thanksgivings are appointed for everybody, but they do not come to all alike, neither are they observed by every one with the proper spirit. We are to have another on the first Thursday of December, to give thanks for the many blessings we have received as a nation. We, as a people, should be very grateful for the preservation of our republican institutions; for the return of Peace; for the abundant harvests which have been gathered; and for the many favors which the Great Benefactor has vouchsafed unto this great country. As "Righteousness exalteth a nation," let us, with a becoming spirit, on that day, unite our voices in acknowledgment of the many mercies received, and confess our utter unworthiness to be the recipients of His continued bounty and goodness.

☞ The following is a statement of the value of real and personal property in this county, as it has been ascertained by the returns of the last consus: Real $9,365,494; Personal, $3,434,571: Aggregate, $12,800,065. Of neighboring counties, that of Blair in the aggregate is $11,282,753; Bedford, $11,316,947; Cambria, $7,904,771; Centre, $14,252,830; Juniata, $3,693,978; Mifflin, $11,515,544. Huntingdon county holds a prominent position in the middle rank of the counties in the State in reference to wealth consisting of real and personal property. The total wealth of the State in real property is $1,154,528,785; personal, $504,680,139; aggregate, $1,659,208,924.

☞ At a stranger's debut in Boston, they ask—what does he know? In New York—what is he worth? In Philadelphia—who is he? In Washington—what is he? And in Lowell—is he married? If such is the case in the ungossiping cities, as for our devoted village each and every of the above questions and as many more are asked when a stranger shows his figure upon our street. Of course there is no reform to be made in this matter and the stranger has to "grin and bear it" until he knows what it is to be better acquainted.

☞ Our farmers, and others who have made sales this year, have realized handsome figures for every animal or article disposed of. When an undergrown colt sells as cheap as a good horse did formerly, and farming implements and articles of furniture are five times more valuable than they used to be, we must come to the conclusion that high prices reign. Indeed, prices are at such a figure that some of our husbandmen do not know what to ask for their commodities, but they are sure to sell at the very highest market prices.

☞ We understand that an ordinance has been passed by our "borough fathers," abolishing the use of coal oil lamps in the back streets. The reason alleged, is that the lamps were too much expense. We are sorry that our back streets will hereafter be veiled in darkness, when the moon refuses to shine, and hope the day will not be made distant when the better and cheaper light from gas will be introduced in their as it is on the main streets.

☞ Now is the best time to pack butter for winter. See that jars, or tubs are thoroughly cleansed. A spoonful of clean white sugar to a pound of butter, put in at the last working will improve the quality even of good butter and cause it to bring a higher price. Of course, this piece of information is not intended exclusively for those who have packed the article, and are now packing purchasers with 45 and 50 cts. a pound!

☞ We think the trumpeter of Clarion made his remark a little more pertinent than he desired, when he hoped "the Monitor may be able to cast a new light over the dark and benighted regions of Huntingdon county."

Items about Home.

Paper Mill.—D. M. Baro & Co., are erecting a paper mill at Baro's Mills, Blair county.

Pocket Picked.—Wm P. Waream, of Lewistown, had his pocket picked of $550, in Tyrone.

Heavy.—Apples, per bushel, in Johnstown, cost three dollars, and forty cents a quart is asked for apple butter.

To be Rebuilt.—The Lincoln rolling mill in Hollidaysburg, which was burnt down last spring, is to be rebuilt.

Nail Factory.—B. M. Johnston has erected a nail factory, in connection with his rolling mill, in Hollidaysburg.

Drowned.—A child aged three years named Amos M. Bartley was found drowned in the race near Cuba Mills, Juniata county, on the 24th ult.

Scalded.—A little daughter of Rev. A. Baker, of Ebensburg, was so shockingly scalded on Thursday, as to result in her death the following evening.

Swindled.—Mr. Benjamin Stimwell, of Perrysville, Juniata county, who was in Philadelphia, was swindled of $350 by a pair of sharpers, adepts in the confidence game.

Bear Chase.—A bear chase come off near Mifflin on Thursday, in which some "tall fighting" was done by the bear, but from the effect of wounds received died soon after.

Bears.—Shade Mountain must be a wild uncivilized region, no less than eleven bears having been captured this season on the Mifflin and Juniata sides.

Petty Thieving.—This specie of thieving is causing some trouble among the citizens of Lewistown. Hen-coops and stables suffer from deprodation almost nightly.

Suicide.—Adam Spaughy, of Somerset twp., Cambria county, committed suicide recently by hanging upon a tree, in a wood a considerable distance from his residence. Mr. Spaughy has been liable to fits of mental derangement for some years.

Disunion.—The Johnstown Democrat says: A family in Johnstown about a week since, resolved on dissolution, or at least one part of it seceded. The husband having discovered some letters and a likeness about the house that did not in his opinion accord very well with the marital relations of his wife, he took his three children and decamped for Ottawa, Canada West.

Robbery.

On Sunday evening last the saloon kept by Mr. Riebter, on Railroad street, was entered, and pillaged of six cans of oysters, tobacco, bologna, and besides a quantity of beer. The offending parties are known to be residents of this place, but we forbear mentioning their names.

Especial to Ladies.

Now that the holidays are coming, people are looking around for suitable presents for their friends, and there seems to be a general anxiety with the public to secure a Photograph Family Record. The agent, Mr. Harrison, finds it difficult to supply everybody.

See Card.

We invite the attention of our readers to the card of K. A. Lovell, Attorney at Law, in to day's paper. Mr. L. is a popular and reliable young man and we would advise all those desiring "business in his line" nicely settled, to call upon him.

On the 2d inst., by the Rev. W. R. Mills, Prof. W. A. HUNTER, Principal of Shade Gap Academy, and Miss NELLIE HAMPSON, of Mill Creek, Huntingdon county, Pa.

DIED,

On Sunday, September 10th, in the city of Bogota, United States of Columbia, South America, MARY B., the beloved wife of Wm. Lee Stiles. Formerly Mrs. H. Crangle of Harrisburg, and mother of Willie and Sarah, dec'd. who were well known in this place.

On Oct. 17th., Mr. DANIEL NEFF, of Porter township, Huntingdon county, Pa., aged 72 years, 8 months and 29 days.

The deceased was one of our most honored and respected citizens, a man of strict integrity and sterling worth. By honesty and industry he acquired considerable property, and though a quiet unpretending man, he was none the less useful as a citizen. Belonging to a denomination whose discipline forbids the bearing of arms, he yet felt it his duty in the nation's late life struggle to give his influence and his means to sustain his government. He died in peace, and the sure hope of a blissful immortality. His remains were followed to the grave by a large concourse of sorrowing relatives and friends. J. W. L.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

TO THE LADIES.—Do you really intend to cease wearing the beautiful styles now so prevalent, or dress less elegantly, because the rebel Jeff. Davis, was captured in Fashionable Female attire! One moment's calm reflection will surely serve to change your rash resolve. The angels had too much good sense to lay aside their pure chaste robes of white, because they had for a time served to hide the deformities of that Prince of Rebels, the Devil. Can you err in following the example of Angels? Then having made up your minds that you will continue to dress tastefully regardless of rebel acts, do not forget to call at the store of the subscribers, who will be happy at all times to furnish you with such articles of dress as you may desire. Urge your fathers, husbands, brothers, neighbors and children to visit the same store. They can here be suited in good articles of Boots, Shoes, Clothing Material, Hats, Caps, Queensware and a general assortment of Groceries, on as reasonable terms as at any House in town. Store on South east corner of the Diamond, Huntingdon, Pa.

REMEDY FOR THE PILES.—It is a blessing to the suffering to know that we have an effectual cure for this troublesome disease. Mr. J. P. Hazarde, of 164 Second street, Cincinnati, O., takes great pleasure in informing all who are suffering with piles that he used a small quantity of Dr. Strickland's Pile Remedy, and it effected a permanent cure. This seems to be the case with all who make use of this splendid preparation. It is manufactured at No. 6 East Fourth street, Cincinati, O., and sold by all Druggists

FOR SALE.

THE RUINS OF THE LATE ALEXANDRIA FOUNDRY.

THE undersigned not feeling to rebuild the Foundry now offers for sale the ruins and all property saved. The building was a stone structure.—The Moulding room was 44 x 46; Ware room, Engine and Lathe rooms were 36 x 47; the walls of which are still standing and were but little injured by the fire. The engine, boiler and stack are perfect, the cupalo is also standing uninjured. There is a large stock of valuable patterns, consisting of rolling mill, grist mill, forge and furnace patterns; a large stock of flasks for all kinds of work, a full set of large and small crain and hand ladles, the largest of which is capable of holding twenty hundred.

The ground connected with the Foundry is one acre and fifteen perches, on which there is erected a frame building used as a pattern house; also, wagon and carriage houses.

ALSO,

Three houses and lots, having fruit, &c., all of which will be sold cheap. Terms easy to suit the purchaser.

A FARM AT PRIVATE SALE.

The subscribers will offer at private sale a farm situated in Jackson township, containing about one hundred and forty of which are cleared, and the balance well timbered with pine, oak and chestnut.

TWO HUNDRED ACRES,

The improvements consist of a good dwelling house, bank barn, blacksmith shop, corn house, wagon shed, and other necessary out buildings.

A branch of Stone Creek runs through the premises, and a spring of good and never failing water near the house. A good apple orchard, and a number of young peach trees are also on the farm.

This is a desirable location, well adapted to the raising of stock, and is convenient to schools and churches.

For further information inquire of the undersigned living on the farm.

Farm For Sale.

THE HEIRS of Joseph Reed will sell at private sale a valuable limestone farm containing

157 Acres, 141 Perches, and allowances, situate in WEST TOWNSHIP, Huntingdon county, Pa., one mile from Petersburg, which is on the line of the Penna. Railroad.

About 120 acres are cleared and in good state of cultivation, including some 25 acres in meadow. The remaining part is well timbered and is every acre available for farming purposes

There are on it a large well finished brick house, a large bank barn, one tenant house, a brick spring house, carriage house, wagon shed and corn crib.

Also, an excellent apple and peach orchard. The fences are good, including nearly 200 panels post and rail fence.

On the farm are three never failing springs of the best limestone water, and a running stream passing through one corner of the barnyard. This presents a rare chance to obtain a productive, first quality farm.

For further particulars call upon or address, previous to October 20th, the undersigned.

Electricity.

DR. BREWSTER HAS OPENED an office in Huntingdon, Pa., and has cured, and further pledges himself to cure a class of diseases acknowledged to be incurable by any known process of medication, diseases that never have, nor never can be controlled, only by his mode of applying the various modifications of Electricity.

The Doctor does not wish to convey the impression that he cures all diseases in all conditions; he does not wish to shock the sense of the public by asserting that he can cure pulmonary consumption after the lungs are half decayed, but he pledges himself to cure every case of pulmonary consumption in the early and middle stage, and every other disease where a sufficient amount of vitality remains for reaction.

Electricity is always safe in the hands of an experienced operator. The currents are perfectly under control, and can be regulated to suit the delicate nerves of a child without any unpleasant sensation.

☞ All those who have long suffered from painful and obstinate diseases!

☞ All those who have been given up by other Physicians!

☞ All those who have been dismissed as incurable from hospitals!

ARE INVITED TO CALL.

Electricity, unlike Medicine, is capable of producing all the changes necessary to cure any disease, when applied from proper polarities. The following are among the diseases our system of practice has proved especially successful in curing.

Diseases Cured by Electropathy.

Amaurosis; Aphony, loss of voice, &c.; Asthma; Ague Chills, fever and ague; Atrophy; nervous consumption; Atony of the stomach, Amenorrhœa, suppressed menses; All mercurial diseases; Bites of poisonous insects or animals; Bronchitis; stone or gravel in Bladder; Consumption; Chlorosis, green sickness; Concussion of brain; Contraction of chest; stricture of limbs, Cholic, from different causes; Cramps or spasms, chronic or acute; Congestive diseases of all kinds, Cores; St. Vitus dance; Coldness of foot and hands; Cancers, in certain stages; Copper colored cuticle, or blotches; Catarrh; Diphtheria; Deformed limbs straitened. Deafness, from paralysis of accoustic nerve; Dizziness or drowsiness; Dropsy; Diabetes; Dyspepsia, in all its forms; Dismenorrhœa; painful menstruation; Difficult respiration; Enlargement of joints; Earache; Epilepsy, falling sickness; Fits, from different causes; Gastrition, irritation of the stomach; Gout; Goitre or swelled neck; Glandular swellings; Hemiplegia; Hemorrhage, from different causes; Hysteria, Hysterics, &c.; sick or nervous Headache; Insanity; Inflamed or sore eyes; Incontinence of urine; torpid state of Liver; Lungs, hemorrhage of, congestion of, &c.; Lockjaw; Liver, enlargement of; Leucliorrhœa; flour albus; whites; Mental depression; Muscular contraction; Menstruation, derangement in; Monomania; Milkleg; Numbness, from injuries or otherwise; Neuralgia; Nocturnal emissions; Old sores, indolent ulcers; Ozœna, in some of its forms; Paraplegia; Palsy, numb or shaking, Paralysis, in whatever part; Poisoning; Palpitation of the heart; Prostration from various causes; Prolapsus uteri, &c., Prolapsus ani, or piles; excessive Perspiration; suspended Perspiration; Pulmonary apoplexy; Rush of Blood to the head; Rheumatism, acute or chronic; Restlessness; Swelled Tonsils; Sore Throat, from any cause; Salt rheum; Scrotula; Spinal diseases, Curvature, &c.; Ovarian Tumors; &c., Tetanus, or lockjaw, Uterine misplacements, Uterine weakness; Weak Eyes, &c.; White swellings. WM. BREWSTER, M. D.,

DYSPEPSIA, NERVOUSNESS AND DEBILITY.

DR. STRICKLAND'S TONIC.—We can recommend those suffering with loss of Appetite, Indigestion, or Dyspepsia, Nervousness or Nervous Debility, to use Strickland's Tonic. It is a vegetable preparation, free from alcoholic liquors; it strengthens the whole nervous system; it creates a good appetite, and is warranted to cure Dyspepsia and Nervous Debility.

For sale by Druggists generally, at $1 per bottle. Prepared by Dr. A. Strickland, No. 6, East Fourth Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

JOHN REED, Agent, Huntingdon, Pa.

DR. VENARD'S

STAR MAGIC LINIMENT.

$1000 REWARD will be paid for any medicine that excels this for the following diseases:

Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Spinal Affections, Contracted Joints, Cholic Pains, Pains in Side or Back, Toothache, Headache, Sprains, Sore Throat, Cuts, Bruises, Burns, and all Diseases of the Muscles, Skin and Glands.

THIS is an Internal and External Medicine, composed of Roots, Herbs and Barks such as our forefathers used.—There is a bountiful supply on the earth to cure all complaints, if we only knew what they were. This has been a subject for constant study with the Medical Faculty for a great many years, to find out the kinds best adapted to the above complaints—how to put them together, and what portions to use.

This wonderful remedy needs no recommendation save the results which invariably follow its application.

☞ This popular remedy is fast coming into use from the fact that it gives good satisfaction.

☞ PHYSICIANS are invited to test its efficacy in all cases of Rheumatism, Affections of the Spinal Column, and all Diseases of the Skin, Muscles and Glands. It has been used in thousands of instances under the personal supervision of the Inventors, and has never disappointed their expectations. All we ask for it is a trial—experimental proof—and the testimony of the men of straw, are the vouchers we desire to present to the public.

It would be well for many now lying in beds of torture, if these facts could reach their sick chambers. It is more important to them than to the inventors that this should be the case. "Truth is mighty and must prevail."

☞ Keep it in your family, for sickness comes when you least expect it.

Designed exclusively to impart a thorough and

PRACTICAL BUSINESS EDUCATION.

All classes of persons require such an education. Those possessing means, need it in conducting their own business Those without means need it in obtaining and creditably filling lucrative positions in the employ of others.

The course of instruction and practice is arranged so as to fully meet the diversified wants of every department of as comprehended or embraced under the three general divisions of industry: Agriculture, Manufacture and Commerce.

Each student is instructed individually in both theory and practice of Book Keeping, according to the most approved and labor saving methods, Business Penmanship, Calculations, and all the collateral branches of a complete course of business education; and upon passing a satisfactory examination is awarded, by authority of law, a diploma, under the corporate seal of the college.

Students are received at any time. And it is believed that a practical experience of over TWENTY YEARS will be considered by the public an ample guarantee of the practical character of the course and efficiency of the instruction.

All further information desired can be obtained at the college, or by addressing the Principal for a circular by mail.

☞ A liberal discount is allowed to wounded and honorably discharged soldiers. The college is open day and evening.
